PUBLIC INPUT SESSION

Public Input Session

Reeve B. Guyon opened the Public Input Session at 11:03 a.m.

Reeve B. Guyon spoke to the County's philosophy regarding tax rebates and citizen service and that Council has absolutely no plans to revise the land use bylaw and does not support the smart cities theory that is currently being rumored.

Michael Turner from Hawkrige Water Solutions spoke to his Cynthia facility and patent technology. He is working with the landowner Mitch Lambert and expressed concern with the zoning in the Hamlet of Cynthia.

Garry Mastre complimented Council on the article in the newspaper regarding “smart cities.” He commented that Council states they represent the people but he hasn’t seen that happening. He mentioned the hat rule and how the rule came out of the blue. There are people that have not received answers on weed spraying rebates and roads. He noted that council has spent more on lawyers than ever before and is making decisions on its own without having meetings with the public. He feels the RMA should be able to control the government. He told Council to get out there and get talking to the people; that the 30% tax rebate is not enough to brag about because industry gets a bigger amount than the little guy does.

Louise Allchurch from the Metis Society expressed concern that they didn’t know about any of these projects. She asked why are they secret? Why are they not being notified about the new projects? Is Council supposed to regulate them? She commented that the public find out through the back door about these companies coming and things are being debated without the public being notified. She commented that Council goes to all these meetings and is getting paid to do this but are you bringing back reports to notify the public? Can we get copies of these reports? She sees people going to meetings and expects to see better reporting. She noted that Council works for the people and should remember that.

Mitch Lambert stated that he owns three businesses in Cynthia and that the County has been wonderful to him and his staff. He thanked Council for the rebates and thanked the staff for being kind. He would like to start a fourth business to employ more people recycling plastics. He expressed concern with existing land uses and the conflicting maps. He would like to see his project move forward as soon as possible and he appreciates being in Brazeau County.

Reeve B. Guyon closed the Public Input Session at 11:32 a.m.
